Production Designer

Charles is a writer, director and designer. He began his partnership with Frederique Michel in 1985, and he has designed all of her work since then. He has won two Dramalogue awards for production design and in 1999 won the L.A. Weekly Theater Award for Best Lighting Design for George Sand: An Erotic Odyssey in Seven Tableaux (1998). He most recently appeared in The Battle: ABC, “Best Ensemble” winner at the 2006 LA Weekly Theater Awards. In 2009 he won the LA Weekly Theater Award for Sound Design for his work on The Mission: Accomplished here at City Garage.

Romanian-born French dramatist Eugène Ionesco (1909–1994) began his career with a one-act “antiplay” La Cantatrice chauve (1949; The Bald Soprano) that inspired a revolution in dramatic techniques and helped inaugurate the Theatre of the Absurd. City Garage’s production of The Bald Soprano ran four months in 2007-08 and was nominated by the LA Weekly for Best Ensemble.

Ionesco was taken to France as an infant but returned to Romania in 1925. After obtaining a degree in French at the University of Bucharest, he worked for a doctorate in Paris (1939), where, after 1945, he made his home. While working as a proofreader, he decided to learn English; the formal, stilted commonplaces of his textbook inspired the masterly catalog of senseless platitudes that constitutes The Bald Soprano. In rapid succession Ionesco wrote a number of plays, all developing the “antilogical” ideas of The Bald Soprano; these included brief and violently irrational sketches and also a series of more elaborate one-act plays in which many of his later themes—especially the fear and horror of death—begin to make their appearance. Among them, La Leçon (1951; The Lesson), and Les Chaises (1952; The Chairs) stand out.

In The Chairs, a couple of indeterminate age prepare for an evening event in which after a lifetime of preparation, the husband will at last deliver his “message” to an invited audience. The couple slowly fills the room with empty chairs as they being to receive visitors just as empty, while waiting for an orator to arrive. The piece—both comic and melancholy—hauntingly explores the ideas of love, loss, and empty ambition.

Ionesco mastered the full-length play with Amédée (1954), Tueur sans gages (1959; The Killer), and Le Rhinocéros (1959; Rhinoceros) before creating his masterpiece Le Roi se meurt (1962; Exit the King). The character of Bérenger recurs throughout Ionesco’s work as a semi-autobiographical figure expressing the author’s wonderment and anguish at the strangeness of reality. Rhinocéros, produced by City Garage three years ago, represents Ionesco’s most forceful expression of the horrors of orthodoxy, as Berenger watches his friends turn into rhinoceroses one by one, until he alone stands unchanged against the relentless tide of conformity.

Ionesco’s primary achievement lies in having popularized a wide variety of nonrepresentational and surrealistic techniques and in having made them acceptable to audiences conditioned to naturalistic conventions in the theatre. As Ionesco aged, he grew less concerned with witty intellectual paradox and more interested in dreams, visions, and exploration of the subconscious; Ionesco’s final completed full-length play, Voyage chez les morts (1980, Journeys among the Dead), exemplified this tendency. It had its U.S. premier at City Garage in 1999.

But the common thread uniting all his plays is that they build on bizarrely illogical or fantastic situations using such devices as the humorous multiplication of objects on stage until they overwhelm the actors. The clichés and tedious maxims of polite conversation surface in improbable or inappropriate contexts to expose the deadening futility of most human communication. His plays continue to effectively dramatize the absurdity and meaninglessness of social conventions as they expose the futile and mechanical nature of modern civilization.

ABOUT CITY GARAGE

The company at City Garage consists of about twenty actors, a director, a general manager, and a dramaturg/designer. All casting is done within the company. The idea is to do interesting theater that makes people think.

City Garage has had a couple dozen "Critic’s Choice" or "Pick of the Week" productions. It received four L.A. Weekly Theatre Award nominations for its production George Sand: An Erotic Odyssey in Seven Tableaux, and four more for MedeaText: Los Angeles/Despoiled Shore, and another two for Frederick of Prussia/GeorgeW’s Dream of Sleep. Its staging of The Empire Builders by Boris Vian was nominated for Production of the Year, while its revival of Ionesco’s The Lesson received nominations in both direction and performance categories, winning the award for Best Direction. Heiner Müller’s The Battle: ABC was nominated for Best Direction and Best Ensemble in 2006 and won the Ensemble award. In 2007, its Three by Mee season received four LA Weekly nominations, including Production of the Year for Agamemnon. The season as a whole won in the Production Design category. In 2008, the company received seven nominations in six categories, including Best Ensemble (one-act) and Best Comedy Ensemble, and took home awards for Best Direction (one-act) and Best Performance (one-act). In 2009, the company earned six nominations including one for Best Ensemble and Best Adaptation for The Mission (Accomplished). In that same year, company founders Frederique Michel and Charles Duncombe won the LA Weekly’s “Queen of the Angles” award for decades of contributions to L.A. theater.

The company’s work with Fassbinder texts has been featured in two German documentaries: Fassbinder in Hollywood, and Fassbinder: Love, Life, and Celluloid. Three of its Heiner Müller productions have been discussed in the book Müller in America published in New York in 2003. In the summer of 2004 in New York City, the company received an Otto, a national award for political theatre (past recipients include Laurie Anderson, Bread and Puppets Theater, Steppenwolf Theater, and Heiner Müller). It was honored that year alongside Robert Wilson, El Teatro Campesino, and Charles Mee.

Tuition: $400
This workshop is open to students between the ages of 14-18, and will explore physicality in the process of building a character through the use of masks. Particular emphasis will be placed on the study of stock characters from Italian Commedia, many of which have been familiar since Roman times and continue to appear in our modern-day sitcoms.

Ages: 6 - 9
Dates: July – August (4 weeks)
Tuition $350
An introductory course for younger children that teaches the use of their voice, body, and emotions in elementary stage work. Instruction will help them explore their developing instruments in stage movement, physicality, simple textual interpretation, and interaction with others. Focused on early development of performance tools, this class helps the child build his or her confidence in a safe, enjoyable, and educational environment. Parents of children with mild to moderate special needs are encouraged to apply for a placement within this class.

Introduction to Playwriting:
Instructor: Kenneth Rudnicki

Dates: June – July (5 weeks)
Tuition $450
The class will focus on developing and refining the tools of creative writing and is open to students between the ages of 11-14.
